

The 2020 Hans Schmelzer Music Award

Every aspect of our music today, whether classical, pop, rock, or jazz, has been influenced by the cultures of central and eastern Europe. The music of Germany, Austria, Switzerland, the Czech Republic, Slovakia, Slovenia, Hungary, Romania, as well as the rest of eastern Europe, has deep roots in the folklore and traditions of its people. These cultures, through the music created by them, have had a profound impact on the development of music history. Yet many musicians and non-musicians know little about the origins or current developments of such music.

The "Hans Schmelzer Music Award" was established in 2010 by the Alemannia Music Foundation, Inc., (AMF) to promote the study of central and eastern European music in the schools, universities, and musical organizations of the So. California area. And through this study, to better connect student and advanced musicians with the roots of music development. It is our belief that by knowing where the music of today has come from, musicians will be better able to develop their own talents and apply their knowledge to the development of music as a whole. The award includes a monetary grant, the amount of which may vary dependent upon the funding received for the year. For 2020, the grant is $1,000.00. Multiple awards may be made each year based on available funding.

The AMF reserves the right to decline making the award in the event insufficient applications are received, no application is received that meets the criteria of the award, or for any reason whatsoever. The criteria and requirements of the award may be changed at any time without notice. Organizations directly affiliated with the AMF or any of the sponsoring organizations are ineligible to receive the award. All decisions of the AMF Award Committee are made at its sole discretion and are final.

The Hans Schmelzer Music Award is administered and primarily funded by the AMF. Additional funding for 2020 has been generously provided by the German-American League of Los Angeles, Inc., Ltd., which is an organization representing 22 affiliated social, cultural, and business organizations in the So. California area. More information about the German-American League can be found on the League website at www.germanleague.us.

About Mr. Schmelzer

Johann "Hans" Schmelzer was born in 1919. His family were Donauschwabens - an ethnic German group that had emigrated from the Swabia area of Germany to settle along the Danube River in Romania, the area of the former Yugoslavia, and Hungary at the urging of Empress Maria Theresa of the Austrian-Hungarian Empire in the mid-1700's. She promised them homestead land for farms if they would drain and settle the swamp lands of the Danube. Other groups also emigrated to the area, including French, Hungarian, Austrian, and Serbian families. With its proximity to a number of ethnic regions, the music of the area has not only been influenced by the groups that settled there, but also by its Slovak, Czech, Polish, and Croat neighbors.

Mr. Schmelzer was interested in music as a boy. He learned to play accordion and then eventually the trumpet and fluegelhorn. World War II uprooted many Danube Swabians, and other ethnic groups of the area, and they left their homeland and headed west - many of them eventually settling in the Los Angeles area. Mr. Schmelzer was among this group and, coming to Los Angeles, he recognized the need to culturally support the newly settled ethnic groups.

In 1962 he founded the German-American Brass Band (or Deutsch-Amerikanische Blaskapelle) which quickly became a favorite at numerous ethnic festivals. Today, as the performance activity of the Alemannia Music Foundation, Inc., it is an ensemble of over 25 musicians from varied ethnic and musical backgrounds. The musicians come from all over the Southern California area with various musical experiences, from high school students to professional musicians.

The band maintains an extensive library of authentic German, Austrian, Swiss, Czech, Slovak, Slovenian, Hungarian, Romanian, and Danube Swabian music, as well as music from other countries and areas. It supports music education and appreciation by giving the participating musicians the opportunity to study this music and perform the music as an ensemble. The band supports public education by performing for the public at events sponsored by civic and cultural organizations. Because of his work with the band, Mr. Schmelzer was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross of the Federal Republic of Germany in 1989. Mr. Schmelzer served as the band's Kapellmeister Emeritus until he passed away at the age of 94 in 2014.
